Have You Got It?

O! the grip is in the air!
Have you got it?
It is on a grippy tear!
Have you got it?
It has run from rocky Maine
To the great Sierran chain,
And then doubled back again!
Have you got it?
If your nose burns when you sneeze,
You have got it!
If you're wobbly in the knees,
You have got it!
If your mouth assumes a taste
That can mentally be traced
To a slaughter house's waste,
You have got it!

If your eyes seem dull as lead,
You have got it!
If they look post-jaggy red,
You have got it!
If the pan that holds your brain
Seems to house a mess of pain,
And from oaths you can't refrain,
You have got it!

If you're sore in every bone,
You have got it!
If your joints have turned to stone,
You have got it!
If your friends all seem your foes
And you wake from out a doze
With a bonfire in your nose,
You have got it!

If your back is filled with ache,
You have got it!
If you think that life's a fake,
You have got it!
If your stomach is in a plight
That it seems inclined to fight
When your food is flashed in sight,
You have got it!

But you shouldn't worry so,
'Cause you've got it!
There are others, don't ye know,
Who have got it!
You are not the only one
Keeping doctors on the run
And the druggist counting mon.
We've all got it!

The Danger That Threatens the Republic.

The Holland Society held its sixteenth annual dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, last Thursday night. The Reverend Doctor Henry Van Dyke, president of the society, presided. On his right sat ex-President Cleveland, and Tunis G. Bergen at his left, while covers were laid for 300, and all places were taken.

The speakers were Grover Cleveland, Doctor Andrew H. Smith and Charles W. Layton. Ex-President Cleveland said:

"I am quite willing to take a humble place among the sermonizers in this time of headlong national heedlessness and to invoke the cultivation and saving grace of Dutch conservatism. This is the kind of conservatism that counts the cost, but, for the sake of principle and freedom, will disregard the cost; that lays out a voyage by chart and compass and follows chart and compass to the end; that loves the liberty and national happiness which rest upon tried and sure foundations; that teaches reverence for national traditions and encourages the people's satisfaction with their country's mission. It is the kind of conservatism in which our Constitution had its birth and which has thus far been the source of our nation's safety and strength—the conservatism of justice, of honor, of honesty, of industry, and frugality and of contented homes.

"In this assemblage of those who know so well the meaning of these things, the question is suggested whether in present conditions this conservatism characterizes the conduct or guides the sentiment of our people.

"There can be but one answer to this question. Conservatism, in a great degree, has been jauntily cast aside, or condemned as opposed to our country's welfare and glory. A strange voyage has been entered upon without count or cost, and without chart or compass. The tried and sure foundations of our liberty and national happiness have been discredited. Reverence for our national traditions has been relaxed and satisfaction with our country's mission has been undermined.

"The restraints and limitations of our Constitution have become galling and irksome on the temptations of national greed and aggrandizement. Our old love of peace, honor and justice has been weakened and frugality and contentment are no longer traits inseparable from American character.

"War, even with the world's advanced civilization, may still be sometimes necessary and justifiable; but, whether necessary and justifiable or not, the demoralization that follows in its train can never be evaded. It teaches bloody instructions which, in a country whose citizens do the fighting, cannot fail to leave their impress for a time, at least, upon public and private life in time of peace.

"Thirty years after the close of the war for the preservation of the Union a treaty of arbitration was formulated between the United States and Great Britain, which, if completed, would have gone far toward removing every pretext of war between the two countries. Thus these two great English-speaking nations then assumed leadership in the path of peace, and in advocacy of the abolition of war—with the hope and expectation that the example would be followed by other nations, and that a more general adoption of arbitration as a means of settling international disputes would result in a great advance toward the abandonment of war throughout the world.

"This treaty failed of confirmation in the Senate of the United States. Less than five years passed, and these English-speaking champions of peace and arbitration are still operating in parallel lines—one in the Philippines and the other in South Africa—but no longer for peace and arbitration. Both are killing natives in an effort to possess their lands.

"This indicates a sad relapse; and, in our case, it is a most serious one. If England succeeds in her attempt in South Africa she will but add another to her list of similar acquisitions; a brave people will be subjugated; and, because of our engagement in a similar venture in another quarter, they will miss the expressions of American sympathy which we are accustomed to extend to those who struggle for national life and independence.

"On the other hand, with success in our subjugation effort, a new, untried and exceedingly perilous situation will be forced upon us. We can conquer the Philippines and, after conquering them, can probably govern them. It is in the strain upon our institutions, the demoralization of our people, the evasion of our constitutional limitations, and the perversion of our national mission that our danger lies. As a distinguished Bishop has said: 'The question is not what we shall do with the Philippines, but what the Philippines will do to us.'

"Our country will never be the same again. For weal or woe, we have already irrevocably passed beyond the old lines.

"The Republic will, in some sort, be saved. Shall it be only in name and semblance, with fair external appearance, but with the germs of decay fastened upon its vitals; or shall it, though changed, still survive in such vigor and strength as to remain the hope and pride of free Americans?

"The problem is a momentous one. Its solution depends upon the extent to which the old patriotism and good sense of our countrymen can be rescued from impending danger. Thus, these are sober days for thoughtful citizens—days of preaching—days for sermonizing.

"If we are to be saved from disaster, it must be through the cultivation and enforcement of that sort of conservatism that should find a congenial home in the Holland Society. In the midst of reckless tumult and the confused rage of national greed and bloodiness, that conservatism should defiantly stand forth and demand a hearing.

"Let it be known that American freedom and popular rule cannot perish except through the madness of those who have them in their keeping; and, by the blood and sacrifices of our fathers, by the lofty achievements of the free institutions they established, by our glorious victories of peace, and by our reliance on the promises of God, let Dutch conservatism enjoin upon our people a faithful charge of their sacred trust."

Truly Great.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie, for whose steel mills the Pierpont Morgan railroad trust is said to be reaching out its tentacles, denies that anything definite has yet been done. "The idea is in the air," says Mr. Carnegie, "just as railroad combination is, but it is only an idea. What a combination it would make!"

Indeed it would, Mr. Carnegie; a combination to delight the souls of monopoly magnates—American railroads, American express companies, American coal mines and American steel mills in all one vast combine!

ideas for trust extension in other directions, and the McKinley administration is pledged to make certain the successful development of such ideas. What a tremendous and profitable combination it will make!

Profitable, that is, to the hundred or so multimillionaires in the gigantic combine. Of course, the people will suffer by it. They will be at the mercy of the monopolists. They will be taxed as a monopolistic government may see fit to tax them—the $180,000,000 ship-subsidy grab tax is a sample of what may be expected. It isn't a pleasant outlook for the people, this combining and centralizing of vast interests that have gained control of the American Government. But what a combination it will make!—St. Louis Republic.

Imperialism.

In an interview published in the New York Sun of Sunday Bishop Potter said among other things:

If we were not afraid of doing a good thing, even though it is English, I should say the Chief of Police of this city should be like the Chief of the London police.

He then proceeds to advise that the seven thousand men of the New York police should be put under the command of a general of the United States army and disciplined and drilled like soldiers. The Bishop said further:

If the federal government could not spare a general in active service for the task, then the city might get some retired officer as able as General Parke, who died in Washington recently, to reorganize its force upon military lines. General Parke was a good soldier and a patriot. For this reason, as he had sworn to support the Federal Constitution, we are certain he would have declined as an army officer to take command of State forces.

General Parke left two thousand dollars by his will for Bishop Satterlee, a friend of Bishop Potter. That's how his good American name happens to have been taken in vain by the Imperialist Potter. This attack, by a man of Bishop Potter's close relations to Pierpont Morgan, upon local self-government, the approval bulwark of freedom, by moving to put a Federal soldier in charge of the constabulary of an American city, shows the true mind of the money kings and their desire to increase the standing army under the Federal power at home and abroad.—National Watchman.

Improper and Suspicious.

Senator Pettigrew's objection, blocking action by the senate on the nomination of Mr. James S. Harlan, son of one of the justices of the supreme court, for the place of attorney general for Porto Rico, appears to be entirely justifiable under the circumstances.

The reason for the objection, as stated by the gentleman who made it, is placed on high and correct grounds. No fault was alleged against Mr. Harlan on the ground of integrity and fitness. But his appointment to the position of chief legal adviser for the Porto Rican government, in the present juncture, is particularly unbecoming and clearly convicts the president of a flagrant breach of propriety and official indelicacy, if it does not lay him open to the suspicion of being actuated by a sinister motive.

The appointee is the son of one of the justices of the supreme court. That tribunal has under advisement for adjudication important cases which involve the constitutionality of the administration's policy and course of action toward Porto Rico.

It would have been more seemly in the president, under these conditions, to have waited until after a decision had been reached upon these vital matters by the court of which Mr. Harlan's father is a member.

It is not believed that a man who occupies the exalted place held by Justice Harlan could be influenced by family or other considerations to render a decision contrary to the dictates of his judgment and his conscience, but it is neither right nor seemly that he should be subjected to the severe strictures and the calling into question of his motives which will be sure to become his portion if his opinion in the Porto Rican cases shall happen to be on the side of the administration.

Mr. McKinley has not been satisfied with sending in the appointment of the son of one supreme court justice for confirmation by the senate to a place of emolument. He has sent in the names of two of them, Justice McKenna's son having been nominated for the position of major in the army—a promotion that will take him over the heads of 118 other lieutenants and captains who are entitled to priority in being promoted on the ground of seniority in the service.

Mr. McKinley's violation of good taste and propriety in making these appointments at this particular time gives color of plausibility to the suspicion that he is trying to unduly influence the action of members of the supreme court. Justices Harlan and McKenna, if they were consulted about these combinations of their sons, ought to have emphatically opposed such an indecorous and improper proceeding.—Kansas City Times.

Great Drawing to aJBobtail Pair.

"The most remarkable draw I ever saw made at poker was in a Chicago club one night," said Robert Hurd of Illinois. "There were five of us in a little social game, with a limit of $25, and all jackpots. A friend of mine, whom I will call Jones, was dealing. I was first under the guns and passed, as did also the two men sitting next. The fifth man—we will say his name was Brown—opened the pot for $5. Jones didn't have the shadow of a thing in his hands, but he raised Brown $10, intending to stand pat and bluff it out. Brown had three aces, and he came back at Jones with $10 better.

"Now instead of laying down, as a wise man should in a case like that, Jones determined to see it through. He knew, of course, that it would be useless to try and bluff, so he drew three cards to a king and queen of spades. Brown had drawn two cards to his aces, and had gotten a small pair. As a bait he led off the betting with $5. Jones hadn't looked at his hand until Brown bet, and when he picked up his cards he almost fell dead. He had drawn an ace, jack and ten of spades, making a royal flush. They raised each other back and forth until one or the other had all his money in, and when the hands were shown the game broke up right there."—Washington Post.

Secretary Hitchcock's statement that one-third of the whole area of the United States, exclusive of Alaska and outlying possessions, consists of vacant public lands, and that properly irrigated it would support a population of 50,000,000, is more interesting than anything that has come from the Philippine Commission. It is better to make millions of homes in our proper limits than to make thousands of graves in Asia, or to hand over the public money to ship subsidy schemers.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
